DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-14, drawn to an isolated nucleic acid molecule encoding a delta 12-fatty acid epoxygenase enzyme, a chimeric gene, the chimeric construct, a vector, a host cell or a transgenic plant comprising said nucleic acid, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1, for example.
- II. Claims 15-19, drawn to a method for producing delta-12 epoxy fatty acids, or wherein method comprises transforming microbial or a plant cell with chimeric gene encoding delta-12 epoxy fatty acid epoxygenase enzyme, classified in class 800, subclass 281, for example.

Inventions I and II are patentably distinct because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product. See MPEP § 806.05(h). In the instant case chimeric construct can be used in a materially different process of using that product, such as DNA hybridization method.

Inventions II and I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make another and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the plant cell can be made by another and materially different process, such as by isolation of a plant cell from a transgenic plant.

Furthermore, searching the inventions of Group I and Group II together would impose a serious search burden. In the instant case, the search for a nucleic acid molecule of Group I will involve extensive search for nucleotide and amino acid sequence databases for any delta 12-fatty acid epoxygenase, whereas the search for the invention of Group II will involve additional search for different methods of producing delta 12-fatty acid epoxygenase enzyme using any microbial and plant systems. Thus the art search for the invention of Group I and II are not coextensive.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
